Aena (a state-owned company) is the world's number one airport operator by passenger volume. It also owns two of the 10 main airports in the European Union by passengers. Given the scale of Aena's airport network in Spain (46 airports and two heliports) and the diversity of the airports, Aena has vast experience in managing different types and sizes of airports.

It is a leading company thanks to its experience, capacity and team of airport service management professionals. Our airports are some of the most modern and functional in the world, and they are equipped with the most advanced technology.

Its efficient services and varied commercial offer (in exclusive environments, with the most prestigious brands and innovative products) guarantee passengers a safe and comfortable stay, with full accessibility and a customer service for people with reduced mobility that is internationally recognised for its excellence.

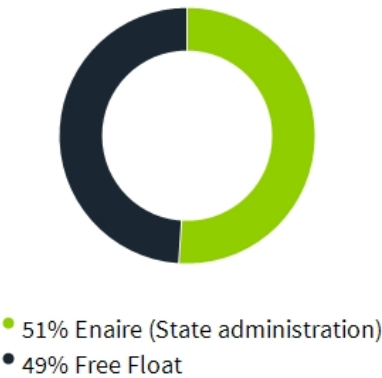

Aena Internacional manages 18 airports in the United Kingdom and Brazil through its subsidiary and is involved in managing a further 14 in various countries in the Americas.

Since 11 February 2015, Aena has been listed on the Madrid, Barcelona, Bilbao and Valencia stock markets.
